

13th Summer Institute on Migration & Global Health

Oakland, California, U.S.A.
June 18 - 21, 2018

Kathleen Moser is a Medical Officer with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention's Division of Global Migration and Quarantine, and she has been the Lead of the US-Mexico Unit since September 2016. Previous to her tenure with the CDC she had been Director of the San Diego County TB Control and Refugee Health Branch for over 20 years.

Dr. Moser received her medical degree at the Medical College of Pennsylvania, completed internal medicine training at the University of Massachusetts, and received a Masters in Public Health from the Harvard School of Public Health and completed a Preventive Medicine residency at the UC San Diego – San Diego State University combined program.

During her service as the Director of TB and Refugee Health Services and continuing in her current position, Dr. Moser has maintained an interest in health issues affecting mobile populations, with special focus on US-Mexico collaboration. Her interests continue to focus on creating and implementing programs, through collaboration with federal, state, and local partners, to improve the health of communities and mobile populations.

Her many publications range from a variety of topics in tuberculosis and refugee health to mobile technology to improve health outcomes.
